Monks' Mound Exploration Recreating 1000-Year-Old Indian Sun Temple

Middle Mississippi Indians who 1000 years ago built the structure known as Monks' Mound in the Cahokia Mound State Park on Collinsville road—needed many hands and many months to erect the 16-acre, 104-foot high mound. The mound is too large to have been built by a single tribe, it is believed.

The Illinois Archeological Survey team currently excavating atop the mound, one of the largest prehistoric structures in the world, is finding its work as arduous as that of the Indians.

The team, led by James W. Porter, Collinsville archaeologist and president of the survey, and Charles J. Bariss, University of Illinois anthropologist, is at present working on top of the mound, excavating a 300x200-foot area to learn what type of building, presumably religious, the Indians erected as the apex of their mound.

Now in its third week of excavation, the survey team began by preparing a detailed topographical map for the whole area and is now digging along lines suggested by the map. Organization of the work around the grid map is designed to insure systematic investigation of the soil, without gaps or overlapping.

Trenches First Stage

Two long trenches represent the first stage of the digging. One is L-shaped, 30x75 feet, while the other is in a straight line 75 feet long. At their depth of about three feet, archeologists judge the floors of the Indian building or buildings to have been laid.

Cutting through the soil in a predetermined course, the survey team is attempting to reconstruct the size, location and contents of the Indian building.

Keys to the investigation are variations in the age, color, texture and composition of the earth. Each level is examined before digging is continued.

Ground used as a foundation for the Indian buildings or for lateral support differs from surrounding soil because it was brought up to the top of the mound from adjacent areas and because of its irregular position. Wall or door trenches or backfill form a jagged, elongated pattern within the otherwise smooth earth. Three such jagged patches have been found.

When two patches of irregular ground are thought to be related, the team will dig connecting trenches to determine if they are part of the same pattern.

Thus far, no objects or artifacts connected with the Indian civilization have been uncovered in the digging. The objects unearthed so far—mills, collars, pieces of metal—are of recent origin and were found in the first foot of earth, the layer which has been laid since the leaving of the tribe. They will be given to the Illinois State Museum.

Work began July 7 and is expected to continue through Labor Day. It will be largely confined this summer to the top of the mound, which was a major feature of what is believed to have been the greatest city in North America, a part of a prehistoric metropolis extending across the Mississippi river bottomlands, and the largest Indian earth structure in the Western Hemisphere.

Stock Car Racer Hurt As Car Flips 6 Times

Extensive injuries were suffered Saturday night in a stock car racing accident as the auto driven by William Gross, 35, of 3525a Nebraska avenue, St. Louis, turned over six times.

Although funds are available studies in the area. In 1960 and for only the summer excavation, 1961 excavators led by Warren the ultimate intention of the survey team and its sponsors is a reconstruction of the Indian site.

From the evidence of post holes and pits, burial pits, several trenches, five pits or hearths, and artifacts, they hope to create one or two structures on their original locations to help visitors to the site.

The mound takes its name at Granite City high school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Williams, 2662 East 24th street, (lower picture) shows the 35-inch depth below present surface that the Middle Mississippi Indians built upon.

School Bus Costs $122,000 for Year

Transportation of about 3000 of its 13,000 students to and from the schools cost the Granite City school district a total of $122,610 during 1963-64, a yearly report showed today.

The school board now has under study the only bid it has received for transportation during the next school year and faces the prospect of a $62,000 increase, to a total of around $185,000, in the new budget, due to several factors.

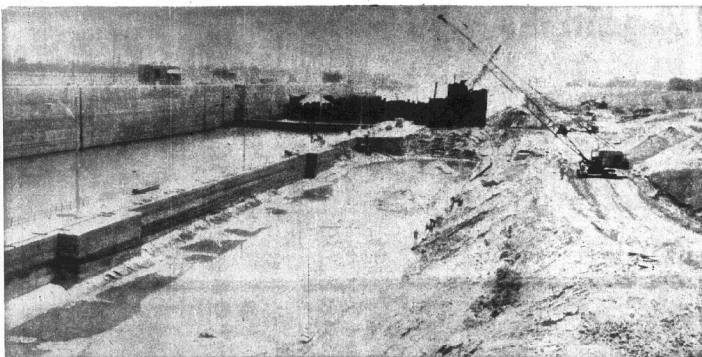

Additional cost in transportation results from enforcement of new state regulations that will require painting all buses yellow, installation of sign arms and rearranging all seats to face the front of the buses. Nine new routes also are under consideration.

Largest cost for a single school during last year's operation was $25,232 for transporting senior high school students. The Mitchell elementary school route was the second most expensive, costing $15,025. The Prather junior high school route cost $14,766 and the Coudie junior high route $13,445.

Transportation costs for other routes were: Central, $4,601; $4,707; Stallings, $9,220; Namoki, $1,685; Frohardt, $1,788; Maryville, $3,328; Lake, $8,200; JMI and Trainable, $8,638; Logan lunch program, $1,150; senior high special, $3,133; junior high special, $303; elementary special, $738; senior high athletics, $3,323; junior high athletics, $2,533; and special education, $1,135.

A schedule of day-by-day activities is being planned by the club, including games on one day and quilting, needlework etc. on another. Classes for knitting, painting, ceramics and other interests will begin in the fall.

New members enrolled were Mrs. Louise Miller, Mrs. Neal Pashea, Mrs. Leticia Suratt, Mrs. Anna Goppert, Mrs. Jewel Ratliff and Mrs. Clara Vogler. Guests at Thursday's meeting were Mrs. Bessie Baker, Mrs. Mary Meski, Mrs. Esther Longoff, Mrs. Hettie Goleman, Mrs. Rachel Sayton, Mrs. Fannie Epstein, secretary of the "Y" board, and John McGee. Birthdays of nine members were celebrated, with special honors for Hugh Beeland, 90 years old.

A trip to a television program was planned and arrangements are underway for an excursion on the Admiral Agat. Aug. 20. The Granite City Optimists invited the club to attend their program

Thursday when Edson Smith, curator of the Madison County Museum in Edwardsville, was guest speaker.

The talk was illustrated with films of the early history of the county and the progress of work now being done in converting the Weir home in Edwardsville into the museum. Mrs. Freda O'Gavin and Mrs. Corinne Rupp, president of the club, attended a meeting of the Metropolitan Senior Citizens in St. Louis the past week to make plans for representatives of the local group to meet at a future date with the Bi-State Transit System to suggest lower rates for retired citizens in off-peak hours.

Venice Man Arrested

For Striking Driver

Correll J. Hampton, 33, of 1036 Logan street, Venice, was arrested by Venice police Thursday night after police said he was a motorist while their cars were blocked by a train at the railroad crossing on Market street.

Paul Gain, 1836 Poplar street, a student attending night classes at the Venice city garage on Klein street, said that as he was pulling away from the garage about 9 p.m. Thursday a car containing four men nearly struck his auto.

The driver of the other car attempted to hit him at a stop sign but he eluded them, Gain related. Later, his car was blocked at the crossing and the four men, who had been following in the other car, got out and approached his car. One of the men struck him in the mouth, he said.

Gain reported the incident to police, who began a search for the car and found it at Weaver and Douglas streets, with three men. The three and the car were taken to the police station, where Hampton, identified as the driver, later appeared to find out about his car.

He was arrested for assault and driving without a city license. The other three men were turned over to Madison police for investigation and later released.

Paddlers' Mothers Will Discuss Trip For Meet at Marion

Transportation for more than 30 members of the Paddlers competitive swim team to Marion next weekend for the 1964 Southern Illinois swimming and diving championships will be discussed tomorrow night at a special meeting of the Paddlers' mothers club.

The 7:30 session has been called by Mrs. Ruth Malotki, club president, and Keith Parker, swim team coach, at the latter's 1309 Garfield avenue.

Difficulties in acquiring bus transportation to Southern Illinois have been experienced by the club in the past week, Parker reported, and arrangements for a private motor caravan for the team members are regarded as necessary.

Paddlers' swimmers entered the AAU championship meet for the first time last season, capturing the fourth place overall position among 20 teams entered. Three of the four top spots in the 1963 meet were won by area teams from the Southwestern Illinois Conference.

Other discussion Tuesday will center on the annual awards and recognition banquet, usually scheduled immediately following the close of the competitive swimming season. Parker is urging all members of swim team members to attend Tuesday's meeting.

Post Office

excessive despite raises totaling 15% in the last several years. Commenting that clerks start at about $2,000 a year and average $4,000, Douglas stressed that people are willing to work for the fringe reward of serving their community if they are permitted to do so with dignity, providing pay does not fall below what will provide basic necessities.

The speaker opposed the current $200 million yearly deficit—$5 billion costs and $4.2 billion income—and said $700 million of it is in second class mail, including magazines and newspapers, and in third-class or "junk" mail in which everything from bars of soap to bottles of hair oil are mailed. First-class postage pays its way, and a $100 million deficit in fourth-class mail income is eliminated periodically, he added.

"I don't know if this financial problem will ever be eliminated, but it illustrates the power of concentrated special interest against diffused general interest," he said, adding that for five cents a day, yet magazines can bring about a change, and spreading continue to lobby for it.

"It is difficult to get sufficient information to the people, but I am endeavoring to do so by word of mouth so that eventually we can bring about a change," Sen. Douglas concluded.

Long History

Comp. Price recalled that the local post office was established a year before the opening of the Eads Bridge, linking it with the west. Even in the days of the pony express, postal delivery to the Cañon lands, where thousands of dollars, he related.

"I do not think the postal department should be run for a profit. I do think it should be run effectively and efficiently and at the least cost to taxpayers as possible."

"In attempting to do this, many problems arise due to changing times. Last Christmas, it became apparent we do not have adequate means of handling mail. From 1920 to 1940, there are today only 1200 trains to mail. Despite budgetary squeezes, home-to-home delivery has been greatly expanded."

Comp. Price recalled that a new Granite City post office had been approved in 1949 but was delayed by the Korean war. It started 20 years ago, he said. He told the audience, "You have a much finer building as a result of the delay, with more modern equipment for the convenience of employees and the public."

Cuffman described the post office bureau of facilities as the largest real estate operation in the nation today, with 871 new buildings containing 35 million square feet of space opened last year. "Despite the fact that it is a complex business, we are providing effective service at a rock bottom price. The five-cent postage stamp is the best communication buy in the world, by far."

If a private business that had to show a profit, the department would eliminate some services and offices and many of the rural routes, he remarked, adding, "Our goal is to provide communications service at a reasonable rate and in a reasonably efficient manner."

Cuffman praised Price as being "as effective in getting new post offices as any man in the history of the United States."

Rail Objection Case Scheduled To End Today

The long-standing circuit court battle over whether or not 13 railroads are entitled to a substantial refund of $2,000,000 in paid tax money was scheduled to end at Edwardsville this afternoon.

This witness in the hearings, which have been in litigation for several years, was to be Edward Konec of Chicago, railroad assessor for the Illinois Department of State Revenue who was subpoenaed as a witness for Madison county.

Burton C. Bernard, assistant state's attorney who has led the county's court battle through a maze of documentary evidence and a large number of witnesses, told the Press-Record during noon court recess today that the case is certain to be completed late this afternoon. He said the county has no other witnesses after Konec testifies.

This morning's session was taken up with additional evidence to further support their contention that industrial property in Madison county is not assessed at a ratio higher than other real property in the county.

Judge James O. Monroe Jr., who has been hearing the tax objection cases has indicated he will deliver a ruling in the case sometime during August.

Witness Testifies

Lynn Styles, former railroad assessor for the Illinois Department of Revenue, testified as a county witness Friday that when he left the department in 1949, railroad assessments were determined according to a formula with deviations on either side of the assessment line ranging from less than 5% to 10%.

Styles, now senior economist of the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago, testified on a question by Bernard that after he left the department the deviation from the formula line continued downward and that the deviation from the formula line since has increased from 25 to 40%.

He said he made a recommendation in 1949 that railroad assessments be brought into line with local assessments.

The hearing Thursday and Friday included additional testimony by tax experts put on the stand by railroad attorneys who concentrated particularly on an attempt to show that commercial and industrial property in Madison county are not assessed too high.

"County attorneys frequently have injected industrial and commercial ratios as comparisons to combat the railroad contention that they were assessed at 100% of 'fair cash value'."

The tax objections filed by 13 railroads cover a six-year period from 1957 through 1962 and involve approximately $2,000,000 in tax monies of 103 Madison county taxing districts. The railroads demand a refund of at least part of this amount on grounds that while they are assessed at full value, other property in Madison county was assessed at a much lower ratio.

Mon Threatens Suicide, Deputies Charge

A 28-year-old Mitchell man, depressed over family troubles, was talked out of committing suicide early Saturday by Madison county deputies, who were called by an anonymous person to the Mississippi River near the Lewis and Clark state park.

"They said the man planned to drown himself. He told officers he just wanted to be alone to 'think things out.' His wife said deputies he has been trying 'suicide tricks' since she won a separate maintenance decision."

Scene This Month

During the first 13 days of the month, the building inspectors and City Clerk A. L. Stevens issued 102 permits, including $1 for remodeling and repairs to homes, mostly due to storm damage. Construction values so far this month were estimated at $82,436.

The rash of storm damage repair permits came after the end of a three-month moratorium during which the city waived the permit requirement.

During the week a permit was issued to Rev. A. J. Schwelbe

Plan Further Talks On Future Of Sanatorium

Madison and St. Clair county officials agreed Thursday night to hold further meetings to discuss the proposed consolidation of the two county tuberculosis sanatorium. The consolidation is being considered under act by virtue of an election held on August 1, 1963, including social security benefits.

Eight representatives of Madison county, including Harold Landolt, chairman of the board of supervisors, were joined by two members of the St. Clair board of supervisors in the closed meeting. Landolt said afterward he wanted to learn more about legal and other aspects of the proposed merger before forming an opinion.

"We met and discussed the options of the two institutions. This is still a new idea to most of us," Landolt said. He said the Madison county sanatorium is a nursing home was discussed, but we are not ready to reach any conclusions have been reached. The meeting was held on Thursday night at the Madison County Board of Supervisors' office.

Francis J. Foley, chairman of the St. Clair county board of supervisors, and Willard Barthel, member of the board's sanatorium committee, appeared for the consolidation, Landolt said.

Basics Of Proposal

Most of the sanatoriums in Edwardsville and in Runkum road in Caseyville township was proposed by Dr. Clifford Hall, director of the Illinois Division of Tuberculosis Control.

Dr. Hall recommended use of St. Clair county's Pleasant View facilities, with 100 beds, to serve both counties. The Edwardsville hospital has 80 beds. Both currently have about 40 empty beds.

Landolt said the merger was too large a matter to go into without knowing more about it. The meeting was held in Madison county and that the St. Clair county board of supervisors.
